GTA 5 Caida Libre Gold Medal Walkthrough by U4GM

The Sanchez chase is where a promising Caida Libre run can fall apart. Trevor needs to reach the bike's top speed for Floor It while staying aboard for Glued to the Seat. If you're browsing GTA 5 Accounts and getting familiar with the story missions, this stretch deserves attention. Use the smoother road sections to build speed, lean forward, and look beyond the next bump. Once the route turns rough, ease off when necessary. Keeping the throttle pinned through every dip won't help if a bad landing throws Trevor onto the dirt.

The crash doesn't end the trouble

Reaching the aircraft feels like the hard part's over, but you've still got work to do. Trevor must kill Javier and collect the documents before heading back toward Martin Madrazo. Meanwhile, Michael handles the van used for the shooting operation and destroys it. That distinction matters when you're following the character switches under time pressure. The job then takes a personal turn: Trevor's argument with Martin leads to him taking Patricia, Martin's wife. Michael gets pulled into the fallout, and the pair retreat toward Sandy Shores with their relationship already under strain.

Make every shot count

Before that chase, Michael has to bring down Javier's jet from the Galileo Observatory. The One Two Three objective requires three shots, so don't fire just because the aircraft looks close to the crosshair. Watch the red targeting marker through the special scope and line up each shot carefully. It accounts for the moving aircraft, giving you a clearer reference than the engine alone. A rushed extra round can cost the objective even if the plane comes down. Take a moment to settle your aim; three clean hits are quicker than recovering from impatient shooting.

Keep the ride under control

It's tempting to follow the falling plane in a straight line across whatever lies ahead. Give yourself room instead. Small steering corrections are easier to manage than a sharp turn just before a ridge. Traffic needs the same attention as the terrain, especially when you cross paved roads. Keep these habits in mind throughout the pursuit.

Build speed where the surface gives you space.
Approach crests with the bike pointing straight.
Leave enough room to steer around vehicles.

Leave room on the clock

The time target is nine minutes and forty-five seconds, and small delays add up. Skip cinematics, drive directly to the observatory, and move promptly after collecting Javier's files. Players looking at Grand Theft Auto 5 Money may also be working through mission medals, but this one comes down to execution. Learn where the bike route becomes awkward, then carry speed through the sections you trust. You don't need every corner to look impressive. You need three accurate shots, a clean pursuit, and enough time left to finish the remaining objectives.
